Discover your leadership potential

In-Person

A signature challenge for new leaders is that they are often promoted to leadership roles because they excelled at their previous positions. Now they find themselves in a role for which they are unprepared. Leading a team usually requires a very different set of skills than the ones they were using as individual contributors, and most new leaders don't receive training in these new skills.

What You'll Learn

Feeling uncomfortable as new leaders, they naturally gravitate back to doing the things, they were doing successfully in their previous roles rather than supporting and serving their teams by leading them. New leaders will learn how to focus on deepening self awareness and self-regulation and identify the importance of developing strengths in others.

Why you want to learn it

Our job is to help new leaders make a successful transition from their previous roles as individual contributors into leaders. Discover your leadership potential is designed to help new leaders recognize the need to stop doing their old job and start leading their teams.

How it will help you

This course will help you increase self awareness, convey honesty, integrity and accountability, use your authority to influence appropriately and model effective interpersonal communication.
