

Leadership Training

Build Trust, Credibility and Respect

In-Person

Breakfast Seminar

What you'll learn

Employees perform better in a trusting environment, but how do you know whether your workforce is operating with full confidence in one another. You'll learn the communication fundamentals for building trust, and be able to share them across your team. You'll also be able to spot and defuse mistrust and adopt actions to begin restoring trust. This course follows a cycle for growth and personal change valuable for leaders at any level.

Why you want to learn it

Trust is key to every relationship. As part of a complex web including credibility and respect, trust is difficult to gain and even harder to recapture once lost. When you know the essential communication techniques for building and maintaining trust, you'll be able to work more effectively with others across your organization.

How it will help you

As a leader, you set a vision, but you need the support of others to accomplish your goals. This course will ensure that your relationships are based on mutual trust, credibility, and respect, enabling you and your team to work past relationship missteps and move forward together.
