

Leadership Training

High Performance Leadership

In-Person

Dale Carnegie's nine ways to High-Performance leadership

What you'll learn

Objectives • Lead and motivate others with Dale Carnegie's high-performance leadership principles • Coach individuals for cooperation and improved performance • Know the difference between being a Boss and a Leader • Lead and engage the three personality types: • Achiever • Vacationer • Hostage

Why you want to learn it

– To handle life's daily challenges. Having leadership skills allows you to find opportunities in all of life's situations and to be a leader to others. To achieve daily life goals one must depend on their leadership skills. Leaders know their way; they do not follow the crowd.

How it will help you

Leadership skills are important traits to possess for displaying leadership skills will help you throughout your career, especially with clients, peers, upper-management, and employees. Many successful individuals rely on their peoples leadership abilities when it comes to making important decisions that impact their team, department, division or company. Understanding the importance of leadership skills helps you set the tone for your organization and inspire others to be committed rather than compliant.