

Leadership Training

Leadership and Influence

In-Person

Innovative organizations realize that they will achieve greater results if their teams can communicate and influence more effectively across organizational boundaries. Resisting the temptation to work in silos, leaders need to form consultative relationships amongst their team and other teams. This includes the ability of an organization to foster movement and readiness in role succession so that trust can be sustained despite competing agendas. And it means that employees need to develop the confidence to challenge, question, influence and think strategically.

What you'll learn

Build trust and strengthen relationships across organizational lines
Gain credibility and visibility for teams and projects
Collaborate with internal and external clients productively
Become a true consultant to stakeholders
Develop a personal reputation that will expand influence
Move from addressing tactical needs to developing strategic partnerships
Proactively listen to earn respect and trust
Evolve to a deeper understanding of broader organizational context
Present persuasive, convincing points-of-view
Provoke stakeholders to consider new approaches

Why you want to learn it

Innovative organizations realize that they will achieve greater results if their teams can communicate and influence more effectively across organizational boundaries. Resisting the temptation to work in silos, leaders need to form consultative relationships amongst their team and other teams. This includes the ability of an organization to foster movement and readiness in role succession so that trust can be sustained despite competing agendas. And it means that employees need to develop the confidence to challenge, question, influence and think strategically.

How it will help you

This program provides business professionals the skills to influence others to accomplish work objectives.