Train the Trainer The Dale Carnegie Way

In-Person

Trainer Skills Development Program

What you'll learn

You'll learn how to turn this negativity into a positive force for the group. Whether you've been a trainer for a while or you're a novice, our Trainer Development Skills Program will help you polish the skills you need to facilitate a training that's participative, fun and has a lasting impact.

Why you want to learn it

This program is designed to help you to become more comfortable as a facilitator. If you've ever been to a Dale Carnegie Course, you know that no one in the room sits in a seat for very long. Carnegie instructors are masters at creating involvement. Whether a participant is a shy, resistant or just plain difficult we know how to bring out the best in him or her and create a successful group effort. These skills can only be learned by doing and that's exactly what happens at this seminar.

How it will help you

At the completion of this program, participants will be able to:

- Deliver training that professionals find interesting and relevant to their work.
- Provide an atmosphere of acceptance and approval through feedback
- Facilitate participation and engagement in large and small groups
- Create measurable impact by linking concepts with participant and organization objectives
