Build Trust, Credibility and Respect

Daring Langsung

Trust, respect, and credibility are tightly interwoven. Being trustworthy builds credibility and respect. But how do you build trust and learn to trust others? It takes a genuine desire and intentional effort supported by principles and tools to gain the trust of colleagues and become known as a credible, respected leader. This workshop looks at the relationship between trust, credibility, and respect and provides principles and tools for restoring broken trust and building a trust-driven work environment.

Apa yang akan akan pelajari

In this workshop, you learn the difference between trust, credibility and respect, and how their nuances contribute to your ability to lead people to great heights. Building and restoring trust is not easy but using the right techniques and tools will engender a healthy environment that engages people and ensures you retain them.
