Delegation

In aula

Delegation isn't just about moving stuff off your plate. It's about developing others while efficiently achieving specific organizational outcomes. Delegation takes some work on a leader's part to determine who is ready for specific assignments and who can take ownership, while not taking control.

Che cosa imparerai

You'll learn to create fair but demanding accountability systems that get results. Using an adaptable delegation process, you'll plan and prepare for giving assignments and structure tasks that develop others. By employing an empowerment cycle, you can communicate clear expectations about performance standards.

Perché vuoi impararlo

You can't do everything yourself. Identifying opportunities for delegating tasks, and the people who are ready to tackle them, is a key management skill for getting things done on time and on budget. Knowing the fine art of delegating enables you to produce results through empowerment!

In che modo ti aiuterà

While it might seem like you can just hand over an assignment to someone else and they'll handle it, sometimes it's not that easy. This workshop helps you discern who can handle what, and you'll have a system for communicating those tasks in a way team members understand and feel empowered. You'll hold others accountable for given responsibilities, enabling you to produce more work in less time through the collaboration.
